

What a fabulous start to the new half term! Our brilliant children have settled back into their classroom routines beautifully, and it's been a week packed with creativity, exploration, and joyful learning.

On Tuesday, we had a musical adventure with African djembe drums! The children loved experimenting with loud and quiet sounds, following simple rhythms, and feeling the beat through their hands. It was a fantastic sensory experience that had everyone smiling!

Out in our forest school, we shared the story Stanley's Stick and then got creative with nature. Using leaves, twigs, and other treasures from the outdoor area, the children made their own "leaf kebabs" a wonderful way to explore textures and patterns while enjoying the fresh air.

In our topic sessions, we've been learning about Remembrance Day and the meaning behind wearing poppies. The children got stuck into some beautiful art activities: stamping poppy prints with apples, mixing red and black paint, and creating a stunning wreath to honour the occasion.
